About Bókadeild Føroya Lærarafelags

Bókadeild Føroya Lærarafelags (BFL) is the Faroese Teachers' Association's Publishing Company and specializes in children's and youth literature. BFL was founded in 1956.

We publish around 90 books a year. We publish books for children and teenagers; additionally we also sometimes launch works in special formats and books for adults.

In addition to editing our own publications, we also sometimes edit and manage printing for others. We can take care of the whole process through to printing, in cooperation with the publisher, naturally. In most cases this means managing layout, proofing, images and printing.

Every year BFL joins the international book fairs in Bologna and Frankfurt am Main, as well as the Forum book fair in Copenhagen. We participate to make sure that we keep up to speed with the most recent developments on the book market and new trends in children's and youth literature. Such fairs are great opportunities for us to raise our profile as publishers, as well as to showcase the work of Faroese authors and illustrators.

Gloria and Soria Moria

Gloria is visiting her granddad at Milky Way 18.

They drink hot chocolate with whipped cream on top and eat buns freshly baked by Gloria's granddad.

All Gloria thinks about is how she wants to join the circus, and her granddad thinks it is a wonderful idea.

Out in granddad's garden there is a brand new trampoline. He put it up for Gloria the circus artist.

Gloria starts jumping, and before she knows it, she is at the top of a tree sitting right in front of a peacock, or is it a peacock?

It is hard to tell, because Gloria now meets creature after creature who are one thing, but still something else.

And that is not all: Gloria must save the sandcastle in the desert.

Delia Ciccarelli

Delia is an Italian illustrator. She was born the 22. May in 1975 and lives in the village Città della Pieve in Italy.

She has been an artist since she was a little girl. As a grown up she has worked for five years in an animation film studio for cartoons and later attended The Illustration Academy in Rome and took her diploma in illustration three years later.

She works as a book illustrator both in Italy and overseas.

In 2005 she arrived in Faroe Islands, which she had dreamed about and fell totally in love with the small island Mykines. She has visited Faroe Islands several times and on her last visit she met the author Vár B. Jacobsen and they immediately became friends and decided to work on a book about puffins. Hence Luddi and Lundisa were born!

Ingun Christensen

was born in 1968 and grew up in a bilingual home with a Faroese mother and a Danish father.

Ingun trained as a bilingual clerk in English and German and has a Bachelor of Education degree in English. She went on to work in the tourist industry, but has now spent many years working as a correspondence clerk, secretary and translator.

Ingun's passion for writing awoke early and she composed her first poem at the age of twelve, which she also set to music. In recent years she has focused more on her writing, and the interplay between imagination and wordplay in creative writing fascinates her. Her first work to appear in print was the poem Trælabungin (Enslaved), which was published in the Faroese magazine Kvinna in 2009.

Ingun lives in the Faroese village Hósvík and has a son.

Skuggamyndir / Silhouettes

Imagine sitting in a bus where everyone has a story to tell!

In these nine short stories from contemporary daily life, the author lets people tell their story. With this he allows the reader to glimpse the silhouettes behind the people. Their stories intertwine to reveal the ways in which we all affect each other.

In this collection we meet the teenager, who always feels his parents' eagle-eyes on him; the woman in the red mac on her way to work in the linen store with a sore wrist; the man with the moustache, who no longer wants to hide who he is; the young brunette struggling to find her footing between expectations and demands; the dark-eyed young man with the impression that the grey-eyes of the man next to him are ominous; the old man, who faithfully visits his wife at the nursing home, and the young mother struggling to balance work and family life.

NEW

Nelus the leveret

Nelus lives in a deep hare burrow just under Malarbrúgv on Keldufjall mountain in Svínoy. When the weather is good, all the leverets hop out to play.

Old granddad hare also lives in the burrow. And, like most granddads, he loves to tell stories about the old days. Granddad hare is so ancient that he even remembers when there was a war in the Faroe Islands!

One winter's day Nelus finds a roof slate in the snow, which he immediately tries to use as a sleigh. But it is not easy to steer a roof slate and Nelus gets stuck in the snow. Fortunately, Little Brother and Little Sister come to the rescue.

This story is so exciting and fast-paced that children will listen with baited breath.

The illustrator has covered the book in intricate drawings teeming with cute little animals, houses, people and nature as the backdrop. He has even included a map of all the places in the Northern Islands where the story unfolds. At the back of the book you will also find fun facts about hares, which have inhabited the Faroe Islands since the mid 18th century.

Føroyska Rokksøgan/Faroese Rock History

Faroese Rock History takes the reader on a journey through the history of rock music in the Faroe Islands. The book provides an account of the development of local popular music in the Faroes from the 1950s onwards and features both bands and individual artists. In spite of the title, the volume is not limited to rock, it also covers genres such as pop, country, folk and electronica. This is the first book of its kind in the Faroe Islands. No other publication provides such a comprehensive overview of the whole history of popular music, although excerpts have featured in television documentaries and radio programmes.

The two lead authors Hans Egholm, former freelance journalist, and Kartín L. Hansen, journalist working in Denmark, have worked together on this project for ten years.

was born in 1966 in Copenhagen. She is a Faroese author and has lived most of her life in Tórshavn, where she resides today. As an adult, however, she has spent five years in France, where she has written four of her books. Raket has taught creative writing and drama, she has written plays for theatre and produced plays with young people. She is especially known on the Faroe Island for her books about the boy named Victor Hugo Persson, named after the renowned French author Victor Hugo. The first book: Tey kalla meg bara Hugo / The just call me Hugo has been published in Norway in 2009. Since 2004 she has worked with the Swedish author Kalle Güettler and the Icelandic illustrator Áslaug Jónsdóttir on a series of picture books about the little and the big monster, which have been published simultaneously in Iceland, Sweden and the Faroe Islands. These books have received excellent reviews, won awards in Iceland and have been published in several other languages including Danish, French, Spanish and Chinese. The three authors have been nominated for the new Nordic Council Children and Young People's Literature Prize.

NOTEWORTHY

Hon, sum róði eftir ælaboganum / The girl who rowed after the rainbow

Falling in love, friendship and betrayal are some of the themes in this fast-paced teenage fiction, which is also well suited to adult readers. The book's main character is Argantael, who is clever, beautiful and popular in school, because she is always right on trend with the latest fashion.

She seems to have it all, everything any teenager could wish for, but that is not the case. What Argantael wants more than anything is parents who care about her.

The reader gets a glimpse of Argantael's life with an indifferent father and a mentally ill mother – two adults, who are unable to focus on their child's needs. But Argantael is strong, right until another girl gets between her and Dagan, the boy she is in love with.

The book won the West Nordic Literature Price in 2016 and was nominated for The Nordic Council Children's and Young People's Literature Prize in 2017.

NOTEWORTHY

Óendaliga vera / Endless being

About old Vera and young Leon, about the present and the past in the 20th and 21st centuries.

Vera is in a care home, she can no longer speak, but memories of her life and loves, unrequited and requited, are flooding her mind.

She receives a visit from Leon, who has been tasked with sorting through her last possessions: what to keep and what to throw away?

The descriptions are vivid and the figurative language evocative. These are the stories of several generations amalgamated into a carefully composed and captivating tale of betrayal, silence, love and longing.

Birita Michelsen was born in Sörvágur on December 17th, 1985. She lives in her own apartment at Ovaravegur in Sörvágur where she cultivates her multiple interests.

Birita is very creative with her hands, she plays the guitar and also writes poetry. She loves animals and plants and is a passionate environmentalist.

NOTEWORTHY

So normal og tó ikki / So normal, not really

Birita Michelsen has written about her life, which in many ways differs from the ones most of us lead, because of her autism.

This book was written over several years. It begins in 2009 and ends in 2016. It is a compilation of diary extracts, songs, food recipes, and especially of excerpts describing what it is like to be a young woman with autism.

The publication could be categorised as an autobiography. It is about growing up with autism and about the challenges that entails. And although it can often be difficult, life also has all its positive sides: A loving family, the assistants whom Birita grows fond of, music, literature and handicrafts.

Birita strikes a distinctive tone in her writing, she is witty, but also deeply serious.

This is a book that offers unique insight into the life of someone living with autism.
